What is Thriving Families, Safer Children

Thriving Families, Safer Children (TFSC) is a movement centering the voice of community and local experts with lived expertise in child welfare and other systems to co-create a new way forward with partners across Los Angeles County.

What are we doing?

LA County is one of four jurisdictions chosen from across the country as part of TFSC with support and access to decision-makers at the local, state, and national level. The goal is to build coalitions to change and create policies that are informed by community and individuals with lived expertise leading and developing policies, programming, and making decisions with system partners from the inception of the idea to its implementation and ongoing ownership.

Who are we looking to hear from/include?

Those who have been, will be, or maybe impacted by the child welfare and juvenile justice system. Including: Foster youth, foster/adopted parents, legal guardians, birth/bio parents, juvenile justice youth, families impacted by the jj system, and any and all other Transition age youth (TAY) sub-populations.

Why are we doing it?

Typical Decision-Making System executives with position power make decisions, create policies and programs, only asking communities for feedback after key decisions have been made with little or no input from those most impacted. The TFSC team does not have a prescriptive approach to these conversations. Instead, we will be co-creating our approach with community members to meet their needs and what will work best for them.
